447 MILES WITHOUT TOUCHING HIS MACHINE.

A trip of 447 miles without touching his machine in any shape or manner to adjust or repair it, and at a total running expense of $4.85 for the whole trip, is the record made this last week by V. S. Darling of Auburn in a Reo runabout, a machine listed at $650.

Mr. Darling, with his wife, set out last Sunday in the little machine. The purpose of the trip was more or less of an economy and endurance test, and as such it was a complete success.

The trip was to Aroostook county 75 miles beyond Bangor and hence back to Waterville, to Skowhegan, then to Farmington, to Livermore Falls, to Ramford Falls and hence home.

From Auburn to Aroostook and back as far as Livermore Falls, the roads were excellent. From Livermore Falls to Ramford Falls and home they were not so good.

Mr. Darling and his wife maintained an actual running time for the trip of 18 miles per hour, and also travelled 18 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Says Mr. Darling, "Our only running expenses were $4.85 for gasoline and cylinder oil."

I did not touch a tool to the car, nor even blow up a tire, during the whole trip. We did not have the least trouble, the car rode comfortably, and we enjoyed every mile. I believe that with strict economy, I could have brought the cost down one cent per mile or less. I used more oil and gasoline than was absolutely necessary, and with strict economy would have saved the extra few cents. A little over one cent per mile is cheap traveling for two passengers. We stopped at more places and took our own time about it than anyone could have done, making the same trip by rail, and waiting for trains. Our biggest day's run was 125 miles of straight traveling.

Mr. Darling did not make fast time the first day on account of the fact that he was accompanied by a large touring car, which gave some trouble and caused him to wait. The car was in as perfect running order on his return as at the start. It might have gone for hundreds of miles more without adjustment or repair.

Considering that it was made by a low priced runabout, the performance of Mr. Darling's car may be classed as remarkable.—Lewiston Journal.

MONUMENT ASSOCIATION.

Organized in Pattee's Hall Last Monday Evening.

Bethel, Maine, Oct. 30th, 1906.

To A. W. Grover, a Justice of the Peace, in and for the County of Oxford and State of Maine.

We the undersigned residents of the aforesaid state and county being desirous of being an incorporated body for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument on the Common or Park in the Town of Bethel, request you to issue your Warrant to one of said Petitioners directing him to notify the other Applicants to meet at some suitable place named in said Warrant for the purpose of organizing such Association.

I. C. Jordan, E. E. Whitney, H. C. Barker, F. S. Chandler, H. E. Jordan, J. U. Purington, A. S. Chapman, Seth Walker, E. C. Vandekerckhoven, Milton Penley, T. F. Hastings, W. W. Hastings, H. H. Hastings, E. C. Park, A. H. Hutchinson, F. L. Edwards, J. C. Billings, N. R. Springer, E. C. Bowler, F. B. Tuell, M. R. Coburn, J. H. Barrows, A. M. True, E. S. Kilborn, T. H. Durell, W. O. Straw.

In answer to the above petition a meeting was called Monday evening of this week in Pattee's Hall and was attended by a representative list of the above petitioners.

An association to be known as Bethel Soldiers' Monument Association was organized with the following officers: President, E. C. Bowler; vice-president, A. S. Chapman; secretary, E. C. Park; treasurer, Ira C. Jordan; trustees, M. C. Kimball, E. S. Kilborn, W. W. Hastings, N. R. Springer, F. L. Edwards.

A committee on by-laws consisting of E. C. Bowler, I. C. Jordan and J. H. Barrows, made a partial report and will complete their report at the next meeting.

The interest and enthusiasm on the part of the citizens present was indeed encouraging, and it is the purpose of the organizers to push forward until a monument which shall be worthy of the soldiers who went out from Bethel and a credit to the town, shall be erected.

During the meeting, comrade H. C. Barker reminded those present that Bethel counted 160 men who donned the blue and went forward in sacrifice if need be, for the preservation of the Union. But 33, said he, of those 160 men are living today and 6 have passed the narrow stream within the past 14 months.

The remaining 33 are naturally anxious that something be done if ever anything is to be done to plant some lasting memorial to the memory of those 160 men. It is right that those men who have so long desired to see a fitting memorial to the soldiers of Bethel erected, should see the completion of their desire before they rejoin their comrades who have preceded them, and certainly every loyal citizen of Bethel will rally to the support of a cause which will make this happy completion of their desire possible.

An entertainment was held in Bethel some forty years ago for the purpose of raising money for such a memorial. About $150 was raised, which amount has been on interest since that time and today the Bethel Savings Bank holds about $500 which is available as a nucleus around which to build.

With this as a starter and with other assistance in sight the association has every reason to feel that the purpose for which it is organized may be accomplished with little difficulty. There is no disposition to let the matter wane, but rather the fire which has been kindled will be kept alive until the work is accomplished.

Another meeting will be held at the same place on Tuesday evening, Nov. 6th. Let all who can be present.

Cheslie Saunders of Hanover was in town Saturday.

Mr. Will Bennett of Gilead was in town last Saturday.

Miss Alice Billings went to Augusta for treatment, Tuesday morning.

Mr. James Bois has moved into his new house which he has recently built on the Locke's Mills road.

Mrs. Loring and daughter, Doris, of Yarmouth, were guests of her sister, Mrs. W. F. Kendall, Sunday.

Mrs. William C. Bean and son, Herford, of New York are guests of Mr. Bean's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bean.

Mrs. Clara Champion went to Boston last Friday to spend the winter.

HALF A HUNDRED

Or More Lives Lost at Atlantic City, N. J.

By the wrecking of a three coach electric train on the West Jersey and Seashore railroad, Sunday afternoon, at least fifty passengers perished and the list may reach a total of 75. While crossing a draw bridge spanning the water way known as "The Thoroughfare" which separates Atlantic City from the main land, the train left the track and plunged into the water.

The passengers in the first two coaches, with one or two exceptions, were drowned. Up to midnight Sunday night twenty-seven bodies had been recovered and, it is believed, at least 25, and possibly fifty more bodies, are still in the submerged coaches.

The disaster, the worst that has happened since the terrible Meadow wreck of July 30, 1896, occurred about 2.30 Sunday afternoon. The train, made up of three heavy vestibuled electric coaches, which left Camden at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, carried probably, eighty passengers, as that number of tickets is held by the conductor. That official is uncertain, however, just how many passengers were aboard, and until the bodies have been taken out of the submerged coaches, it will not be possible to give even an approximate estimate of the dead. The cause of the wreck has not been established. It was probably due either to defective rails, or the breaking of some part of the superstructure of the first coach. It has already been suggested that the draw bridge, which had just been closed, after a passage of a yacht, may have not properly locked the rails. All theories Sunday night, however, are purely speculative as to the cause.

While running at a speed said to have been moderate and not unusual, the first coach left the rails and dragged those following it over the ties for a distance of fifty feet. Suddenly swerving the first two coaches plunged over the side of the bridge into the water, fifteen feet below. The third coach struck a heavy abutment, broke its couplings, and, for a brief time, hung perilously suspended over the water. Brief as was this period, however, it gave more than a score of passengers an opportunity to escape by the rear door. Then the car slid off and followed the other two into the water. It is believed every one in the rear, or third car, escaped alive, although all were more or less injured.

The accident was witnessed by many persons on shore and assistance was promptly sent from Atlantic City.

The trestle is about 15 feet above the water. The entire city was thrown into a state of excitement as the news reached town about half past two o'clock, a few minutes after the tragedy. Fully 5000 people crowded the Meadows and the trestle, many relatives and friends crying in despair for loved ones. Chief of Police Maxwell had a cordon of police swung around the death circle, and Chief Black of the fire department called out his men on an emergency call and put them on temporary police duty. There were seven bodies recovered up to 7 o'clock.

THE DESTINY OF WOMEN.
She Should Be Satisfied With Being a Woman.

The first requirement in the ideal of a woman is that she shall be a satisfied woman, and that she does not at all wish to be anything but a woman. The creed of pessimism and despair is: "It were better not to be!" yet I would give no more for "I would greatly have preferred to be something else!"

Woman should not be satisfied to accept herself at this valuation, though that, doubtless, is better than to revolt against her fate; but she should appraise herself, feel the high dignity of her position, recognize the advantages of life under the special form in which she receives it, and which in nobility, is equal to that bestowed upon man. In a word, woman should have the courage and pride of her sex.

We often meet young ladies who would like to be boys. In speaking among themselves of certain others of their set they say: "There is a girl who ought to have been a boy; she is a boy lost!" There is no harm in this, inasmuch as it is no more than a joke and a fashion of speaking. It amounts to saying that certain young girls have aptitudes which ordinarily are characteristic of young boys. But these have never prevented a woman from being truly and gracefully womanly.

What we wish to indicate and stigmatize here is silly scorn of that which we already possess; a refusal to put it into operation, to employ it, and the dangerous illusion which lies in thinking that we should have done greater work in this world if God had wished to make us something other than that which he has desired.—Pastor Wagner, in Harper's Bazar.

I Think It Would Save SUFFERING

Dear Sirs:— Bangor, Me., Mar. 3, 1904.
Have used your "L. F." Medicine; I can truly say it has done me lots of good. I feel it a duty to offer a testimonial. I was troubled with Biliousness of the worst kind, and by using the "L. F." Bitters I found relief in a short time. I think if the people used it more it would be a great saving of doctor bills.
Respectfully yours, MISS C. L. PINKHAM.
You and your family can be saved much suffering by the prompt use of "L. F." Atwood's Bitters.—Dyspepsia, Impure Blood, Biliousness and Headache yield to its safe, specific action.

SIMPLE GREENBACK SALAD.

Buying $300,000 Apartment House Small Matter to Hotel Chef.

Catering to the gastronomic fancies of New York city is certainly a profitable employment, if the records of the real estate exchange are to be believed, says the New York Herald. According to them, Gustave Becker, chef of the Holland house, purchased recently from the Germania Life Insurance company two elevator apartment houses at 306 and 308 West Ninety-fourth street. Mr. Becker paid $300,000 for the property.

When asked to talk about himself and tell how he accumulated so much money while devising dishes with which to tickle the palates of patrons of the hotel, Mr. Becker took refuge behind a modest reserve which could not be broken down.

"It is such a small matter, this buying of a house or two," he said. "Why should I speak of it? It is not as if I had never before bought property. Part of this hotel is mine, and then I own the house in which I live."

"So many can make money, that it is no great credit for a cook to do the same. Other chefs have accumulated fortunes and there has not been so much talk about it. It is enough that I have been fortunate and can purchase a bit of land and houses when I see a bargain."

It was learned that Mr. Becker for some time has had a considerable interest in the hotel where he is employed. The chef's ability to find bargains in real estate is not unknown to dealers, and it is said he knows as much about profitable location as he does about the last delectable sauce piquant.

Mr. Becker admitted with a show of nonchalance that he owns the fine apartment house at 204 West Ninety-fourth street, where he has lived for a long time. He seemed surprised that it should be considered unusual for a chef to own a home in a fine residential district.

MANNA FALLS FROM SKY.

The Miracles of Old Reenacted in Turkestan.

More than 20 tons of real manna have just fallen from the skies in Turkestan, to the superstitious awe of the natives.

The manna fell in a district almost bare of trees, and it was eagerly collected by the poverty-stricken villagers, who ground it into flour and made cakes of it.

Ignorant of its natural origin, they regarded it as a gift from heaven.

As a matter of fact, manna is the result of the burrowing of a certain worm in trees. It is a regular article of commerce in the east, the manna ash tree being cultivated in Sicily.

But the manna that has just created so profound an impression in Turkestan is not quite the same.

A high authority on Biblical natural history states that it is the work of a worm that only produces this substance under certain climatic conditions, which obtain only about once in every 15 years or so.

These worm casts, when dry, are very light, and in the present case they were probably caught up by a whirlwind and carried away to a great distance.

The falling of a dense shower of these edible casts would naturally be regarded by the natives as a wonder. It is possible that the Israelites experienced this while wandering in the desert, and although the cause was perfectly natural, to them it was in effect a direct interposition of providence in their behalf.

The word "manna" means in Hebrew "I know not." In Turkestan the word has a similar meaning.

In Australia manna is obtained from a eucalyptus tree. It was formerly used medicinally in children's ailments.

Green Ray Is Seen at Sunset.

The "Green-ray" is to be seen for an instant just at the time of disappearance of the setting sun below a clear horizon. Prof. Rambout finds that the phenomenon can be entirely accounted for by the generally received view of the chromatic dispersion of the atmosphere combined with selective absorption. It is not necessary to make elaborate experiments or to go on a sea voyage in order to observe the green ray. By fixing a screen and covering the focal plate of a telescope, or better still, a diaphragm with a narrow diametral slit, a green or blue flash can be seen at the top of the sun's disk and a red fringe at the bottom any time that the sun is near the horizon and the observation can be repeated as often as desired.

STATE OF MAINE.

OXFORD, SS.

To the Sheriff of our County of Oxford, or either of his Deputies, Greeting:—We command you to attach the goods and estate of Daniel Russell of Rumford in our County of Oxford to the value of twenty dollars, and summon the said defendant, (if he may be found in your precinct) to appear before the Judge of the Norway Municipal Court of the town of Norway, in said County of Oxford, to be held at the Municipal Court Room in said Norway, on the first Tuesday of August, A. D. 1906, then and there, in said Court in answer unto Consider F. Farrar of Woodstock in our said County of Oxford.

In a plea of the case for that the said defendant, at Woodstock, viz at said Norway, on the day of the purchase of this Writ, being indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of six dollars, and ninety-three cents, according to the account annexed, then and there, in consideration thereof, promised the plaintiff to pay the same on demand.

(Daniel Russell to Consider Farrar Dr., June 26, 1906. To 99 lbs. of beef at $7.00 per hundred, furnished in 1903, $6.93.)

Yet, though often requested, said defendant has not paid the same, to the damage of said plaintiff (as he says), the sum of twenty dollars, which shall then and there be made to appear, with other due damages. And whereas, the said plaintiff says that the said defendant has not in his own hands and possession goods, and estate to the value of twenty dollars aforesaid which can be come at to be attached; but has entrusted to, and deposited in the hands and possession of Mary Thompson of said Woodstock in said County of Oxford, Trustee of the said defendant, goods, effects and credits to the said value.

We Command You, therefore, that you summon the said Trustee (if she may be found in your precinct), to appear before said Judge of said Court, to be held as aforesaid, to show cause, if any she has, why execution to be issued upon such judgment as the said plaintiff may recover against the said principal defendant in this action (if any) should not issue against his goods, effects, or credits, in the hands and possession of, her, the said Trustee.

And have you there this Writ, with your doings therein.

Witness, Herriek C. Davis, Esq., Judge of said Court, at Norway aforesaid, this twenty-sixth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six.

HOW THE COMPOSITOR READ IT.

An editor was sitting in his office one day when a man entered whose brow was clothed with thunder. Fiercely seizing a chair, he slammed his hat on the table, hurled his umbrella on the floor and sat down.

"Are you the editor?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Can you read writing?"

"Of course."

"Read that then," said he, thrusting at the editor an envelope with an inscription on it.

"B—" said the editor, trying to spell it.

"That's not a 'B,' it's an 'S,'" said the man.

"(S)? Oh, yes, I see. Well, it looks like 'Sole for dinner,' or 'Souls for Sinners,'" said the editor.

"No sir," replied the man, "nothing of the sort. That's my name—Samuel Brunner. I knew you couldn't read. I called to see about that poem of mine you printed the other day entitled 'The Surcease of Sorrow.'"

"I don't remember it," said the editor.

"Of course you don't because it went into the paper under the villainous title of 'Smearcase To-morrow.'"

"A blunder of the compositor, I suppose."

"Yes, sir; and that is what I am here to see you about. The way in which that poem was mutilated was simply scandalous. I haven't slept a night since. It exposed me to derision. People think me a fool. (The editor coughed.) Let me show you. This first line, when I wrote it, read in this way: 'Lying by a weeping willow underneath a gentle slope.' That is beautiful and poetic. Now, how did your vile sheet represent it to the public? 'Lying to a weeping widow, I induced her to clope.' 'Weeping widow,' mind you. A widow! Oh, thunder and lightning! This is too much!"

"It's hard, sir, very hard," said the editor.

"Then take the fifth verse. In the original manuscript it said, plain as daylight, 'Take away the jingling money, it is only glittering dross.' In its printed form you make me say: 'Take away the tingling honey; put some flies in for the boss.' By George! I feel like attacking somebody with your fire shovel! But, oh, look at the sixth verse. I wrote: 'I'm weary of the tossing of the ocean as it heaves.' When I opened your paper and saw the lines transformed into 'I'm wearing out my trousers till they are open at the knees,' I thought that was taking it an inch too far. I fancy I have a right to murder that compositor. Where is he?"

"He is out just now," said the editor. "Come in tomorrow."

"I will," said the poet, "and I will come armed."

BUILT UP HER HEALTH

SPEEDY CURE OF MISS GOODE

She Is Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Writes Gratefully to Mrs. Pinkham.

For the wonderful help that she has found Miss Cora Goode, 255 E. Chicago Avenue, Chicago, Ill., believes it her duty to write the following letter for publication, in order that other women afflicted in the same way may be benefited as she was. Miss Goode is president of the Bryn Mawr Lawn Tennis Club of Chicago. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I tried many different remedies to build up my system, which had become run down from loss of proper rest and unreasonable hours, but nothing seemed to help me. Mother is a great advocate of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles, having used it herself some years ago with great success. So I began to take it, and in less than a month I was able to be out of bed and out of doors, and in three months I was entirely well. Really I have never felt so strong and well as I have since."

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacement of organs, inflammation or ulceration, can be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Her experience is very great, and she gives the benefit of it to all who stand in need of wise counsel. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Salt and Epilepsy.

"Whenever we get a call to attend a case of epilepsy," said an ambulance surgeon at Bellevue, "we always find the patient's neck and face covered with salt. The efficiency of salt as a cure for epilepsy is evidently a relic of some old country superstition, though just what it is we've never been able to find out."—N. Y. Sun.

Player Folk Live Long.

Dr. Clarke Russell collected many instances to prove the longevity of players. Wilks lived to 88; Mrs. Olive, Beard, Betterton and Reoley to 75; Murphy, Jack Johnstone, King, Vining and Wallack to 78. Downton reached 88; Colley Cibber, 86; Yates, 97; Macklin to some over 100. Mrs. Glover was 68; Garrick, 66; Harley, 72; Liston, 69; Pope and Quin, 73.

ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

HANDY SLIDING BARN GATE.

Should Be in Use to Restrain the Cattle and Keep Them Within Bounds.

Where cattle are stabled for the convenience of milking and feeding, it is useful in hauling to have small gates hung in alley ways to prevent the stock from becoming unruly. Not infrequently considerable disturbances are brought about in handling a dairy herd while stabling, simply on account of a lack of doors across exposed passageways. In our barn we have small gates located wherever it is necessary.

Sliding Gate for Barn Alley.

To prevent the cows going into an alley or feed room while stabling.

The diagram inclosed herewith, says a writer in Prairie Farmer, shows one of the handy gates we have in use. They are great conveniences. The gate proper is made of pine material five inches in width. The gate, of course, is made to fit the place where needed. The two outer pieces are longer and serve as a part of the hanger. The gate is hung upon a two-inch gas pipe, which is in length twice the width of the gate. Iron straps serve the purpose of hangers and slide upon the gas piping as a track.

In our barn we have in use eight of these handy gates and would not think of getting along without them. In one or two instances when stock got loose they doubtless saved the lives of the animals as our feed room is in easy reach of the stable.

ROAD TARRING.

It Is Carried on on a Large Scale in France.

Road-tarring on a large scale has been seen in France during the preparation for the Grand Prix race. The tarring is carried out on the Lassally system by the use of the most improved apparatus for heating the tar and applying it to the surface of the road. Commenced on the 25th of May, the operation lasted scarcely ten days for the 500,000 square yards which were covered, employing two gangs, each made up of six drivers and eight horses, together with eight men for spreading the tar, counting the men needed for sanding the road after the tarring. A fine road is the result of this operation, says the Scientific American, and it shows that by the use of the proper apparatus a large extent of road can be treated within a short time and with a small amount of labor. At the last moment the excess of sand which covers the layer of tar will be swept off by the four sweeper wagons employed by M. Lassally, when the cars will be able to run under ideal conditions. Such a process, far from being an extra expense, is now recognized as an actual economy, seeing that the cost of keeping up the road becomes much less, and this pays for the tarring expenses, and may even exceed the latter, as has been found during a long series of observations made in France.

FARM NOTES.

If farm conditions are not ideal, it is in the power of the agriculturists to make them so.

For cutting bands, in threshing time, an old section off a mower, riveted to a piece of wood about eight inches long, works first-rate.

The farmer who now selects and saves seed corn, and takes good care of it, has laid the foundation of a good crop next year.—Farm Journal.

Taking the country as a whole, and averaging the various crops, one thing is sure—the harvest is a very encouraging one, with no signs of famine ahead.

If you pour the potatoes pell-mell into the bin, don't be surprised if they rot. Bruised potatoes are very apt to spoil. That means loss, and loss means hard times by-and-by.

Drive a stake down good and solid put some flat stones around it and stack the beans about it. Put the roots nearest to the poles. Press the stalks down well and cover over with a bit of oil-cloth if the weather is bad.

The culture of the earth is the most primitive, natural and extensive employment of civilized life. It brings with it cheerfulness and assurance, and fosters their under its benign and never deserting protection.

THE HOME CIRCLE.

Peaceful Evening Reveries—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Use the bitter elements of life as medicine and feed on the sunshine.

Time is never lost that is spent in leading any person into a better life.

Don't neglect your children until they are grown and then complain because they neglect you.

Give your children good books and plenty of them and then help them understand what they read.

Habits formed in youth are very apt to stick to you in after life. Young people who now spend every dollar they can raise, are not apt to be thrifty in after life. Those who go in rude company and use rude language will naturally associate with the rude class in years to come. Many parents never seem to think of those things, but allow their children to drift along just as it may happen.

Sympathy does not lighten a burden of sorrow, but it does help the burdened one to bear his load. If, therefore, you know of a sorrow which presses another's heart give expression to your sympathy with him, even though you understand that he alone must struggle under the weight of his burden. In one sense your words cannot help him; in another sense they can. Speak them out, therefore, for what they may be worth. He will be grateful for them and you will be the better for their speaking.

Solomon's description of a lady is complete: "The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her. She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life. She girdeth her loins with strength and stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she giveth aid to the needy. She maketh herself coverings of tapestry; her clothing is purple and fine linen. Her husband is known in the gates. Strength and honor are her clothing. She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness." Strength, honor, wisdom, goodness and virtue are her requisites. A woman strong and womanly in all her ways in whom the heart of a woman can safely trust—this is the perfect lady.

Don't complain of your husband to anyone, not even your own mother. If she is the wise woman you think her she will respect you all the more. Did you think when you married your Will or your Harry that he was the one perfect man in all the world, and now you have found out that he is very human, after all? That it does seem sometimes as though he loved himself a little better than you? That he can even bear to differ with you sometimes in matters that concern you very much? And, oh, dear little woman, that he will forget just what you want him to remember sometimes? Now just take our advice and don't tell any body. He is your husband—your other self—and you ought to cover his faults just like you do your own.

Parental love, conjugal love, filial love are the keystones to that arch that supports the pillars of government and keeps our social system secure. As a rule anarchists have no children. No, nothing to love but themselves. As a rule the poor love their children better than the rich, for riches will in time absorb a man and absorb his best emotions. With the poor the children are first, with the rich they are second. The law of compensation comes into everything in this life. The good and the bad; the joys and the sorrow are kindly mixed by a wise Providence. Then let us all be content with our lot. Let us not look over the fence to envy our neighbor, for we know not his secret sorrows. Let us not trouble our own house for fear we shall inherit the wind.

Honor the dear mother. Time has scattered snowy flakes on her brow, plowed deep furrows on her cheek, but is she not sweet and beautiful now? The lips are thin and shrunken, but those are the lips which have kissed many a hot tear from the childish cheeks, and they are the sweetest lips in the world. The eye is dim, yet it glows with the soft radiance that can never fade. Ah! yes, she is a dear old mother. The sands of life are nearly run out, but feeble as she is, she will go farther, and reach down lower, for you than any other upon earth. You cannot enter a prison whose bars can keep her out; you cannot mount a scaffold too high for her to reach, that she may kiss and bless you in evidence of her deathless love. When the world shall despise and forsake you, when it leaves you by the wayside to perish unnoticed, the dear mother will gather you to her arms and tell you all your virtues, until you almost forget that your soul is disfigured with vices. Love her tenderly, and cheer her declining years with holy devotion.

How Would It Be.
If an authoritative bulletin were to be issued this moment from the court of heaven that in just seven days the earth would be destroyed, what passion do you think would survive the shock? Would it be hate, or envy, or ambition or the love of gain? Oh no; of all the passions that animate the human breast, the one to endure would be love. There would be a rush to grasp love's final opportunity. Mothers would gather children about them, and there would be no impatience, no putting aside of bothering little arms, no withholding of caresses because they disarrange hair or lace. There would be no turning the boys out into the street for the reason that in their play at home they were prone to make havoc with the tidies on the chairs and the bric-a-brac on the shelves. There would be no lack of knowledge as to where the girls are in the evenings or at train time, when the depot is swarming with loafers. Indifferent husbands and nagging, bickering wives would forego their coldness and their quarreling, to die with each other to redeem the past during the brief time allotted them. Friends would be more faithful, lovers more true, associates more thoughtful of each other's comfort as the swift hours sped away. But we need no bulletin from heaven to acquaint us with the briefness of love's opportunity. The span of our day is already set, and we wonder if the thought of home to us may not quicken us to improve the chance to brighten our homes with the full and constant shining of love that is in our hearts, although dimmed and corroded by the sordid environments of life.

THE SOUL'S SUNSHINE.

The cold, chilling atmosphere which sometimes pervades a reception or other social gathering is often entirely dissipated by the hearty, ringing laughter of some simple, genuine soul who is bubbling over with fun. The stiffness and constraint which a minute before embarrassed the whole company are relieved as if by magic.

There is something in genuine, spontaneous humor which removes all restraint, scatters embarrassment, relieves tension and welds souls together as no introduction or conversation can. It puts the shy at ease, dissipates prejudice, gives confidence to the mind, and reassures the shrinking soul. The cheery smile, or the spontaneous laugh, awakens sympathy and arouses feelings of friendliness. It seems to melt all barriers.

Oh, what riches live in a sunny soul! What a blessed heritage is a sunny face, to be able to fling out sunshine wherever one goes, to be able to scatter the shadows and to lighten sorrow-laden hearts, to have power to send cheer into despairing souls through a sunny and a radiant heart! And if, haply, this heritage is combined with a superb manner and exquisite personality, no money wealth can compare with its value.

This blessing is not very difficult of acquisition, for a sunny face is but a reflection of a warm, generous heart. The sunshine does not appear first upon the face, but in the soul. The glad smile that makes the face radiant is but a glimpse of the soul's sunshine.

THE ART OF PLEASING.

The secret of many a man's success is an affable manner, which makes everybody feel easy in his presence, dispels fear and timidity, and calls out the finest qualities in one's nature.

Comparatively few people have the delightful faculty of being able to get at the best in others, and of so drawing them out of their shell of reserve or shyness that they will appear to the best advantage.

It is a wonderful gift to be able to reach the heart of a man to help him to develop powers and qualities of attraction which he did not know he possessed. Such a gift has sealed great friendships for life, and has caused a man to be sought after in business as well as in social circles.

By taking a large-hearted interest in every one we meet, by trying to pierce through the mask of the outer man or woman, to his innermost core, and by cultivating kindly feelings toward every one we meet, it is possible to acquire this inestimable gift. It is really only the development of our own finest qualities that enables us to understand and draw out what is fine and noble in others. Nothing will pay one better than the acquisition of the power to make others feel at ease, happy, and satisfied with themselves. Nothing else will make one more popular and sought after.

HE DID HIS BEST

By Henry Coyle

Before God's footstool, to confess
A poor soul knelt, and bowed his head.
"I failed!" he cried, The Master said:

"Thou didst thy best,—that is, success!"

THE GUEST ROOM.

WAYS BY WHICH IT CAN BE MADE ATTRACTIVE.

Little Things Easy to Do and Which Will Add Much to the Comfort of the Person Occupying the Chamber.

For several reasons, the guest room is apt to be the least attractive room in the house, writes Elizabeth Biddle, in the Chicago Inter Ocean.

For instance, it is generally on the side of the house which has the least sunshine, and it is not, as a rule, fitted up with the attractive furnishings which fill the rooms that are more frequently occupied.

The hostess who wishes to make her guest feel thoroughly comfortable may do so for a very small outlay of money.

First of all, she must have the room papered with a pale yellow or pink paper. These colors do not absorb the light and will make the room almost as cheerful as if the sun shone into it. She will have dainty ruffled muslin curtains at the window and a second set of curtains and slip covers of some attractive flowered chintz, matching the wall paper in color. There should be plenty of chairs, and a couch if possible. An open fireplace always adds to the comfort and cheerfulness of a room.

It is a wise guest who relieves her hostess of her society for an hour or two each day, for both need a little solitude.

Letter writing is always an excellent excuse and, as a rule, an authentic one, so it would be a wise plan for the hostess to provide a writing desk for the guest; one that is well filled with all the necessary appointments for writing.

There are also many small things which may be put into the room that add greatly to the comfort of the occupant. A card giving the hours of arriving and departing trains and mails, and a laundry list, with the day and hour that the messenger will call for the linen, marked on it, will be found extremely useful.

A thoughtful hostess will put a clock in the room and see that it is going properly before the guest arrives; and she will, of course, place all the necessary articles on the dressing table—hair brush, mirror and comb, whisker brush, clothes brush, mirror, powder box and puff, and pin cushion filled with various sized pins; the other toilet articles the guest will, no doubt, bring with her.

On a little table near the bed she will stand a dainty candlestick with candle and matches, and on this same table she will place a small work basket fitted up with needles, a few spools of cotton and of silk, an emery bag, a small pin cushion, and a silver celluloid thimble, and a small pair of scissors.

All this sounds extravagant, but just try it and see for yourself with how small an amount of money one can provide these additional comforts.

True hospitality is that which gives a guest all the little daily comforts such as one is apt to have at home, and then leaves her free, in a great measure, to come and go as she pleases.

Stuffed Cucumbers.

Pare four good-sized cucumbers, cut them in halves and carefully remove the seeds. Into a saucepan turn one-fourth of a cupful of milk and two or more tablespoonfuls of grated bread crumbs, and cook slowly until the milk is absorbed. If the stale bread is not grated, mash the mixture until smooth, then add a half cupful of finely chopped cold chicken, a half teaspoonful of salt, eight or ten drops of onion juice, a dash of cayenne, a tablespoonful of melted butter and a well-beaten egg. Stuff the cucumbers with the mixture, packing in as tightly as possible. Arrange them in a saucepan ends up, pour over them three cupfuls of well-seasoned chicken stock, cover closely, and let simmer for 45 minutes. Serve the cucumbers on toast. Thicken the stock in which they were cooked, add a teaspoonful of lemon juice and pour this sauce over and serve.

Popular This Winter.

Silver and gold braids will be used in every possible relation this winter, even in touches here and there in evening creations. To Paquin also is attributed a great deal of this popularity. It was used in the little bride-maid costumes which were designed by him for Lady Mary Hamilton's wedding. They were in white mousseline de soie and the touches of silver galloon were in the high draped bodices and outlining the belt of pale blue silk. Wreaths of pink roses were worn instead of hats and the note of light blue was repeated in a little Louis blue of velvet set in among the roses.

Brass Cleaning.

Powder should never be used to clean wrought or chased brass. Wash the articles well first and dry them. Then rub over the surface with half a freshly cut lemon. When quite clean, rinse thoroughly in warm water, let it dry, and polish with a chamols leather.

Mildew and Linen.

Take equal parts of soft soap and the starch and lemon juice, mix into a paste, and spread thickly on both sides of the mildewed article, and lay it on the grass day and night. In a day or two the mildew will disappear.

AN OLD MAN'S TRIBUTE.

An Ohio Fruit Raiser, 78 Years Old, Cured of a Terrible Case After Ten Years of Suffering.

When suffering daily torture from backache, rheumatic pain, any ill of kidneys or bladder, turn to Doan's Kidney Pills. A cure endorsed by thousands. Read an old man's tribute.

Sidney Justus, fruit dealer, of Mentor, Ohio, says: "I was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills of a severe case of kidney trouble of eight or ten years' standing. I suffered the most severe backache and other pains in the region of the kidneys. These were especially severe when stooping to lift anything, and often I could hardly straighten my back. The aching was bad in the daytime, but just as bad at night, and I was always lame in the morning. I was bothered with rheumatic pains and dropsical swelling of the feet. The urinary passages were painful, and the secretions were discolored and so free that often I had to rise at night. I felt tired all day. Half a box served to relieve me, and three boxes effected a permanent cure."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Justus will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

High Prices in Japan.
This is a time of high prices in Japan. The cost of everything has advanced enormously. The rates of five or ten years ago are recalled with regret. Rents and wages have advanced proportionately. Dwelling houses that could be obtained for 45 or 50 yen ($22.50 or $25) a few years ago now cost 90 or 100 yen, and the wages of domestic servants are approximately double what they were formerly. Taxes have been enormously increased—the income tax is 250 per cent. higher now than it was before the Russo-Japanese war—and the tobacco monopoly has exactly doubled the cost of even the most ordinary cigarette.

Sailor Knew His Business.

Capt. Moriarty, of the British navy, who has just died in England at the age of 91, had a great deal to do with the early attempts to establish telegraphic communication between England and America. When the first cable parted in midocean he proved his value, instantly taking the ship's bearings. So confident was he of the accuracy of these bearings that when, some time later, the vessel returned to the same point he declared that the ship was "over the spot." This proved to be correct, for almost simultaneously one of the Great Eastern's officers shouted: "We've hooked it!"

Explaining It.

"This talk about millions of dollars for the Panama canal gets me," remarked St. Slocum. "That's a power of money for just a canal."

Mebbe," suggested Rube Robbins, "they're going to have the towpath asphalted. That runs into a heap of money."

Watchmakers Out of Date.

In New York city are about 700 signs that read "Watchmaker," and not a single one of them belongs to a watchmaker, and few that have them could make a watch, and if they could and did the watch would cost about $100, while any of them can sell a better watch for $20 that came from a great factory.

Barbers and Surgeons.

In the fourteenth century the barber's craft was recognized as a profession, being allied to surgery. The barbers were confined, as to surgery, to the letting of blood and leeching, and the extraction of teeth, but the surgeons were prohibited from shaving the face.

Good Work Done by Women.

The city council of Birmingham, England, has increased the number of women health inspectors from four to 20, because of the excellent results achieved in the homes of the poor and in the factories. In the same city the policemen have been taught the principles of "first aid."

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 31, 1906.

Brother Shorey of the Bridgton News sees a great scheme in turning a Rumford "Citizen" out of a Bethel Printery. In phraseology quite peculiar to Brother Shorey's wit he thus expresses himself,

The Rumford Citizen, Bowler's new paper, is as pretty as a picture typographically, and well gotten up. Evidently the big metropolitan center bath need of it. But a Rumford Falls "Citizen" turned out at a Bethel printery—how's that? Why, to be sure, they are laying for a "Rumford Falls the Greater," and to annex Bethel—"buy it up"—when that electric railway materializes. The land-grabbers are extortionate at Rumford and the working man must live in the suburbs if he lives at all. Great scheme that!

VOTE AS YOU PLEASE—BUT DO NOT BE MISLED.

Following the insurance investigation in New York last fall a law was enacted, among other things, obliging the officials of the big insurance companies to furnish any policy holder with a list of the policy holders and their latest addresses.

The New York Life and the Mutual Insurance Companies of New York put every obstacle in the way of the International Policy Holders committee when they requested the names of the policy holders.

After all possible devices for withholding the list, these companies finally delivered to the committee what purported to be a list of the policy holders. The committee sent communications to each one of the names given then. It now develops that the lists were not correctly made up, for very nearly 100,000 letters sent out by the committee to the addresses as given them by the companies have been returned through the postoffice for reason that the persons addressed could not be found.

Comment is unnecessary. It is only left for the press of the country to inform the public that all policy holders in those companies who wish to vote for officials to manage those companies in the future must send their addresses to the International Policy Holders committee, 30 Broad street, New York.

The present management of those companies will not neglect to send a list of the persons they desire voted for to every policy holder. Those who wish to have a choice must take the initiative and communicate with the committee above named.

The Youth's Companion in 1907.

The Youth's Companion announces among the attractions of its 52 issues in 1907

Two Hundred

practical papers, serviceable to young people who have their way to make in the world, helpful in their insistence on worthy ideals in every relation of life, useful in the home—particularly the regular series, "Till the Doctor Comes."

Two Hundred and Fifty capital stories—humorous stories, character stories, stories of life on the farm, in the great cities, on the sea, in the wilderness. Among them will be Five Serial Stories by five Companion favorites: Hamlin Garland, Adeline Knapp, Ralph Barbour, Grace Richmond and Holman F. Day. There will be a series, also, based upon incidents in American history, illustrative of life and times in America from the first colonial planting to the close of the Civil War.

One Thousand

short notes giving concisely, clearly and accurately the important news of the times in public affairs, and in the fields of science and industry.

Three Hundred

contributors giving assurance that every need and every taste among Companion readers will be satisfied. Governor Folk of Missouri, Edward Everett Hale, Margaret Deland, Col. T. W. Higginson, Commander Eva Booth of the Salvation Army, Gen. A. W. Greely and Ion Perdicaris are among them.

Two Thousand one-minute stories, anecdotes, bits of humor—sketches which take not more than a minute to read. They are always well told, and in great quest by preachers and after-dinner speakers. A full Announcement of the new volume will be sent with sample copies of the paper to any address on request. The new subscriber for 1907 who sends $1.75 for the new volume at once will receive free all the remaining issues for 1906, including the Double Holiday Numbers; also The Companion's Four-Leaf Hanging Calendar for 1907, lithographed in twelve colors and gold. Subscribers who get new subscriptions will receive $10,000.00 in cash and many other special awards. Send for information.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

The car situation in Aroostook county is relieved somewhat.

Bishop Louis F. Walsh dedicated the new St. Mary's church at Orono.

The Methodist church at West Baldwin celebrated its 50th anniversary.

The annual meeting of the Maine Teachers' association was held in Lewiston, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

It was announced that Hon. Byron Boyd, secretary of State, would not be a candidate for re-election.

The 16th annual meeting of the Maine Schoolmasters' association was held at Auburn Thursday evening.

The auction sale of the Wiscasset, Waterville and Farmington railroad has been postponed until Dec. 4, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Articles of association were filed at the office of the State board of railroad commissioners by the Penobscot Railroad company.

Dorothy, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Hill of Augusta, was almost instantly killed by being struck by a falling electric light pole.

All the indictments on the criminal docket against Rev. Frank W. Sanford, head of the Holy Ghost and Us Bible school at Shiloh, have been nolle prossed.

In the Bangor Municipal court Saturday C. H. McKnight of Springfield, Mass., was fined $200 and costs amounting to $314.20, for killing a moose in close time.

Clara Day, aged eight years, daughter of Hon. A. R. Day, collector of customs at Bangor, was terribly burned while playing with some other children near a bonfire.

The battleship Minnesota on the Rockland course exceeded her contract speed of 18 knots an hour. On the best run the speed of 19.412 knots was attained.

Henry Farrington, charged with the killing of Eugene Bryant at West Sumner last April, was tried and found guilty of manslaughter. He was sentenced to one year in jail.

Milton Strout of West Harrington was probably fatally injured Monday afternoon by being shot in the head by Arthur Coffin of Harrington, who mistook his victim for a deer.

R. E. Mellyns, United States immigration inspector at Vanceboro, accidentally shot himself in the head while handling a revolver and died while being taken to the Bangor hospital.

By the explosion of a machine at the Sanford mills used to extract water from cloth two workmen were terribly injured. Blair Legere lost a leg and John LeBlanc was injured about the chest and face and arms.

The Lancy House, the principal hotel at Pittsfield, was burned early Sunday morning. Assistance was brought from Waterville by special train, but all effort failed to save the property. The loss is said to be $25,000 and is covered by insurance.

Bangor & Aroostook passenger train No. 512, from Greenville, was in a head-on collision at Webster with Maine Central local train No. 401, from Bangor, the accident being caused by an open switch. Conductor George S. Mishou of the Bangor train had several ribs fractured.

As the county funds in Hancock are insufficient to meet the bills it is thought best by some to increase the county tax as a whole. This action has to be authorized by the Legislature and it is expected that the matter will be brought up at the coming session.

Jones; dedicatory address by the United States commissioner of education, Elmer Ellsworth Brown; reception by "The Round Table" at the new library, 3.30 to 5.00 p. m.; inspection of the building.

A Young Mother at 70.

"My mother has suddenly been made young at 70. Twenty years of intense suffering from dyspepsia had entirely disabled her, until six months ago, when she began taking Electric Bitters, which have completely cured her and restored the strength and activity she had in the prime of life," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick, of Danforth, Me. Greatest restorative medicine on the globe. Sets Stomach, Liver and Kidneys right, purifies the blood, and cures Malaria, Biliousness and Weaknesses. Wonderful Nerve Tonic. Price 50c. Guaranteed by all druggists.

GOOD MANNERS AT TABLE.

One of the Earliest Things Child Should Be Taught.

While the minor details of table manners vary with the years on broader lines, they still remain the same—consideration for others, the suppression of animal-like characteristics, such as gluttony and greediness, and the cultivation of those finer instincts that makes the breaking of bread together a beautiful family ordinance, not a wild scramble of pigs at a trough—an eating to live, not a living to eat.

Good manners should be ingrained, not superficial, and put on for company. To make them natural, training should be begun as soon as a child is able to sit at the table. If a little one is early taught by example and precept all those little details that mark a person of gentle breeding, he will always appear to advantage and that without self-consciousness.

"I always like to take a meal with a man before engaging him for my school," said a prominent educator. "No matter how brilliant a record he may have as a scholar, if his manners are boorish I do not care to have him."

Boorishness must not be confused with ignorance of "who's who and what's what," in the thousand and one table accessories, knives, forks, spoons, glasses and the like, that no one but the manufacturer can keep tab on. A person may be gentlemanly and not be able to tell the difference between an olive fork and a butter pick; a bouillon cup and a tea cup, a sherbet glass and one for a cocktail. He shows a distinct lack of manners, however, when he stabs the bread with a fork, gobbles his food, masticates audibly and with opened mouth, smudges his glass in drinking, talks with his mouth full, shovels in his food with a knife, picks, punches and pokes the general dish of bread, cake or fruit to be sure he is getting the best, or sniffs ostentatiously at each article of food as placed before him.

Educational Value of a Doll.

Sir Lauder Brunton's delightful dissertation on dolls at the meeting of the British association should be read, marked, learned and put into practice by all mothers. Every little girl, said Sir Lauder Brunton, should not only possess a doll, but should be taught how to wash it, make cloths for it, how to exercise it, and prepare food for it. Dolls should be a real being to its little owner, and to this end should be a washable, unbreakable and movable piece of mechanism, with hair that will comb and limbs that will not come off. Nowadays one so frequently—too frequently—hears "my little girl does not like dolls." But every wee girl should be taught to love her dolly and care for it. In this way maternal love is fostered, and what is more, every girl would grow up with as perfect a knowledge of the management of children as she has in the ordinary way of drawing, music or needlework.

The Kitchen Sink.

The ideal sink is of porcelain with rolled edge, round corners, porcelain back and open plumbing without a crack or crevice for dirt or the ever-ready water bug. He is ready still, but he must live in the open and not be concealed. A white enamel sink is almost as good as the porcelain and much less expensive. Soapstone and slate are very good, and so, too, is the copper-lined sink. The great danger is the breaking of delicate china and glass. The copper lining is much the best for that. The wooden drain boards tipping slightly toward the sink are a great convenience. Frequently rubber mats with roughened surface are placed in these to keep the dishes from slipping. There are, besides, wire and nickel-plated dish drains, which will keep the plates separated one from another while draining.—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. H. E. Bartlett has finished burning a large kiln of bricks, which are now ready for sale.

LARGEST HOTEL IN MAINE
BEING DEMOLISHED.

The tearing down of the old Rodick House the largest hotel ever built in Bar Harbor or Maine, probably, is now well under way. The Bar Harbor Record says the lumber from it is being sold for a higher price than was paid for it when the house was built, thirty years ago.

Truth of It.

"Couldn't you get Krotchet to give anything? It's certainly a deserving charity."

"Yes, but he said the subscription price was beyond his means."

"H'm! He meant beyond his meansness."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Meaning of Beauty.

To have the manners of the well-bred women, to move about with grace and dignity, to know poise, character, honesty and deep sympathy, these are the finer lines of beautifying. Who cares a cent for the dolly woman who is beautiful to look at and who hasn't sense enough to draw her breath? Such women are not after the right idea, and true beauty will never place its golden halo on their heads. Personal magnetism makes women beautiful, and what is that but the free workings of a genuinely lovely spirit? Perfume the inside of your head with tender thoughts, keep your body strong, well and clean, make up your mind to learn everything you can, and if you do not look beautiful you will be so—and that will suffice.

Proper Care of Silver.

If the box containing silver polish, a small bottle of alcohol, soft flannels, chamolins skins and brushes be kept in some convenient place in pantry or kitchen, it is a trifling matter after each meal to rub the few pieces of silver discolored by egg, salad, or what not. By this means, the weekly silver polishing may be lightened or done away with.

Extra silver should be kept in cotton flannel bags with a small lump of camphor in each. It will in this way retain its brightness indefinitely.—Harper's Bazar.

Recipe for Cold Cream.

A simple cold cream is made thus: Take two ounces of spermaceti, two ounces of white wax, five ounces of oil of sweet almonds and melt together in a porcelain kettle over a slow fire. Remove, and while the mixture is still hot add one and one-half ounces of stronger rose water, in which 40 grains of borax have been dissolved. Have the rose water slightly warm. Fluff the mixture to a foam by using an egg beater. When almost thick add a few drops of oil of rose, or any preferred perfume.

WEST PERU.

E. G. Austin and wife have been visiting her brother, Roscoe Knight and family at Rumford Point.

G. W. Goding and son have had their house painted and new windows put in. Hershey Williams and family are at Old Orchard. Mr. Williams was home over Sunday to attend the funeral of his grandmother, widow of the late Lucius Keene, who was brought from Massachusetts and laid beside her husband in Dickvale.

Charles Stanley went to Paris recently and came back accompanied by his mother.

MEXICO.

M. C. McLeod was in Peru Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. Fred Cole of Granite street has been quite ill for two weeks.

Mrs. Charles Mills and daughter have gone from Tracy Station, N. B., to Nova Scotia to visit Mrs. Mills' parents.

Some of the High School scholars are starting a collection of specimens in natural history. They are very much interested in the plan and have also interested the local taxidermist Laurio Nyberg, who has promised them two or three specimens each year. Victor Binford was one of the first to bring in specimens for the collection, one being a fossilized oyster that was found on Howard Hill a few years ago, and the other a Fox Sparrow, which are very rare in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Clifford entertained the members of the Congregational church choir Tuesday evening, at their home on Roxbury Avenue.

The Baptist Ladies' Circle met with Mrs. Johnson at her home on Granite street, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Goodwin expect to go to their winter home in Southern Pines, N. C., the last of November. Mr. and Mrs. Otis Wyman of Peru are planning to accompany them.

Mrs. Lula Foster has resumed her work with W. C. Stevens Co's. millinery shop.

Hiram Steves is taking charge of Mrs. Vena Galloupe's farm this winter, while Mrs. Galloupe is teaching the Back Kingdom school.

Mrs. Nahum Moore is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charlotte Snell in Turner this week.

Mrs. Milford W. Sanders, who has been spending the month with her husband in Barre, Vt., is expected home this week.

Consumption

There is no specific for consumption. Fresh air, exercise, nourishing food and Scott's Emulsion will come pretty near curing it, if there is anything to build on. Millions of people throughout the world are living and in good health on one lung.

From time immemorial the doctors prescribed cod liver oil for consumption. Of course the patient could not take it in its old form, hence it did very little good. They can take and tolerate it for a long time. There is no oil, not excepting butter, so easily digested and absorbed by the system as cod liver oil in the form of Scott's Emulsion, and that is the reason it is so helpful in consumption where its use must be continuous.

We will send you a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

DIXFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. Yotson spent a week with their daughter in Rumford.

Thursday evening a supper was given at the Opera House by Miss Isabel Stowell's class of young ladies, to the gentlemen of the Universalist church. A good time and supper is reported. It is also reported that about $10.00 was cleared.

Postoffice inspector was in town last week.

Guy Gardiner started Monday morning for a hunting trip with his friend, Philip Edwards. They left in Mr. Gardiner's automobile to go as far as Roxbury, from there into the woods.

A cement walk is being laid on the side walk in front of the houses of John Harlow and John Decker. It would be a great advantage to the streets if this might be done all over the village.

W. G. Harlow's house is nearing completion and when completed will be one of the most beautiful houses in the village. Earth is now being hauled to grade the grounds.

Preston Holt of Phillips has been visiting his cousin, Floyd Holt.

Mr. Wentworth, who purchased the Fletcher place, is building a stable.

Evenings this week the Linn's hold entertainments in the Opera House. Entertainment consists of their wonderful educated dogs, Toby, Nigger, Snowball, Paul, Major and others. Snowball, the white French poodle is the most pleasing one, her waltzing trick being among her best. Among other features are the comedy sketches, musical acts, moving pictures and illustrated songs.

ANDOVER.

George A. Grover, who was recently operated on at the Lewiston Hospital, has resumed his position as foreman for Jenne and Lovejoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Porter left last Monday for Macy, Me., where Mr. Porter has large lumber operations. They intend to stay all winter.

Horatio Mitchell, while at work at Damon's mill last Friday, unfortunately slipped and lacerated his knee severely. He will be pretty lame for several days.

The Campbell Bros. have taken lumber operations on Sunday River. They will employ some 40 men and expect to get about a million and a half.

Last Thursday afternoon Allen Jodrie, while at work at Bert Dunn's operation on the Lake Road, had the misfortune to wound his left foot severely, cutting the large artery which supplies the toes. At the time he was a mile and a half from camp and by the time he had made this trip and the ten mile ride to Andover, he was in a dangerous condition from loss of blood. Timothy Hastings, who brought him out, took him to Dr. Leslie's office where the artery was ligated and several stitches taken in the wound. Mr. Jodrie is doing well.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell are occupying the Damon house during Mr. and Mrs. Damon's visit to Portland.

William Gregg has been picking the apples on his Porter farm.

Bears are very plenty and unusually bold this year. The selectmen have already paid for some sixteen sheep which have been killed. To show how bold the bears are, there was one vander Simon Baker's yard at South Andover last Thursday, climbed an apple tree and after eating all he wanted, descended, walked across the road and went up the mountain. Friday and Saturday he repeated his visit notwithstanding the fact that there were two men waiting for him with rifles. On the last trip he carried away at least two bullets.

The King's Daughters met last Thursday with Mrs. F. E. Leslie at Glenellis. Their next meeting will be with Mrs. R. A. Grover.

Robert S. Boyd and Edwin V. Noble returned last Saturday from a week's camping trip in the woods beyond the Porter Farm.

Mrs. M. A. Barnes has gone to Cambridge for the winter.

Sidney F. Abbott was a visitor at Glenellis last Saturday.

Mark Burgess and son were up from Rumford Center in their automobile last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Poor and Mrs. Lester Poor spent last Friday at Rumford Falls.

Miss Florence Hoyt, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Philip Hoyt at South Andover, has been quite ill for several days.

They Find in Uric-o A Permanent Cure

Rheumatic Sufferers Rejoice in Receiving such Splendid Results from Uric-O.

If a convention could be held of all the Rheumatic sufferers, who have been cured completely by the use of Uric-O, there would be such a rejoicing as to convince every skeptic that there at last been found the true "Fountain" of health, and yet this would be a decided error, for Uric-O is not a "cure all," but simply a cure for Rheumatism and Rheumatism only.

Every sufferer from Rheumatism who wants to be rid of the sleepless nights, the nerve binding, muscle twisting hours of pain, should lay aside all other forms of treatment, get a bottle of Uric-O and start rejoicing on his way to health. It matters little how long one has suffered, Uric-O will cure it. Cure it completely, cure it permanently and cure it to stay cured. Muscular, Articular and Inflammatory Rheumatism yield at once to this mighty healing agent. Druggists and physicians everywhere are gladly recommending Uric-O for Rheumatism because they know its wonderful curative properties cannot be exaggerated.

Uric-O acts directly upon the blood, muscles and kidneys. It neutralizes the uric acid and rheumatic acid poison, and drives it from the blood.

The store of W. B. Bosserman is the "Home of Uric-O" in Bethel and he sells and guarantees it for 75c and $1.00 a bottle. We know you can be cured by Uric-O and if you only try one bottle you will thank us from the bottom of your heart for having made you acquainted with this marvelous remedy. Don't delay. Don't put it off. Try it and try it today. Ask Mr. Bosserman about it and learn from him the many cures Uric-O has effected right here in your own town. If you desire, you can test and try it free of charge by sending your name and address to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., and asking for a sample free.

SOUTH ANDOVER.

Florence Hoyt has been quite ill for the past week. She has been staying with her aunt, Mrs. Emma Hoyt, but went to the hospital in Lewiston, Wednesday, Oct. 24.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Abbott visited Mrs. Ingalls Bragg last Sunday.

Andrew Abbott of Andover took dinner at Holton Abbott's last Sunday. His son Henry is in poor health and has gone to the hospital in Lewiston for treatment.

Mrs. Charles P. Scott and daughter, Della, of Holden, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Scott's mother, Mrs. S. B. Akers, for a few days.

We learn that Frank Hoyt has purchased the farm formerly owned by Jonathan Grover at North Rumford.

Mrs. L. B. Holt, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Bert Wyman in Chelsea, Mass., has returned to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barrett are visiting relatives and friends in Norway and South Paris.

Mrs. Whitney Roberts is keeping house for Mrs. Barrett while she is away.

Frank Gordon and son, Abel, have been helping the farmers with their thrashing in this vicinity.

Dyspepsia is America's curse. Burdock Blood Bitters conquers dyspepsia. It drives out impurities, cleans the stomach, restores perfect digestion, normal weight, and good health.

RED DOG OF INDIA.

HE IS A MIGHTY HUNTER OF GAME ANIMALS.

Never Reaches the Size of a Wolf and is of Peculiar Shape—To Be Found All Over Asia.

The red dog never reaches the size of a wolf, though it exceeds that of a jackal, says the Saratoga Review. Its shape is uncouth, the body narrow and low in the forequarters, with loose limbs ending in large awkward paws, the head and brush carried low. The head, remarkable for the large blunt furry ears, is intermediate between the domestic dog and fox, without the honest look of the one or the quick-witted sharpness of the other. Against these disadvantages the bright chestnut hue of the wild dog's coat, shading into black at the end of the brush, does not avail for handsomeness.

Over most of India it is to be found, on mountains and plains, in forest, where forest grows and about the bare slopes where the hills have no vegetation. East of India, a very similar beast ranges even to Java, and another, paler and shaggier, haunts of Siberia and Sakhalin, so that over most of Asia one form or other is to be reckoned with. Naturally the Indian species is the most known, yet it is not known at all intimately, for though so widely spread it is not a common animal and the field naturalists of India have little to say of it. But it is clear that the red dog is a very different animal from the wolf and far superior to any other eastern canine. Most of the wild relatives of our dogs are cowardly beasts, feeding on carrion and small animals and only attacking large ones when hard pushed by hunger. Such is the wolf's way of life, while the jackal skulks round villages and sometimes enters large towns in search of scraps, making night hideous with his howls, even in Calcutta. But the red dog is a true hunter, the deadliest foe to the game animals that is known in the east. He is not very swift—less so than the jackal—nor is he adroit or graceful in his actions, but he follows the scent mostly in silence, with a deadly persistence, and however long the trail may be the pack runs along their victim without fail in the end. They do not go in large numbers—a dozen would be a big pack—but what they want in force is replaced by their courage and cunning strategy in attack.

Their ordinary prey is the powerful sambar deer and the beautiful spotted axis, corresponding to our red deer and fallow deer, the various antelopes of the plains and wild goats of the hills. All of these they hunt in turn for a few days, then the terrified beasts forsake that section of the jungle and the red pack must range far afield again, not to return till long after, when the terror of their raid has subsided in the locality. Their methods of attack are terrible in the extreme; some of their devices, indeed, can hardly be mentioned here. Suffice it to say that their ordinary plan, whenever possible, is to disembowel the victim.

Deer are not the only prey on which these terrible creatures adventure; the biggest horns known of the gaur (bos gaurus) came from one said to have been killed by wild dogs, of the Burmese race in this case; and yet this gaur, the largest of all wild oxen, is too much for the ordinary tiger; and the tiger often falls with the bear, but the red pack will bring him to his end. Their fellow carnivores even are not safe. The black bear of the Himalayas, although the fiercest of Italian bears, has been seen in his last struggle with the pack, with torn coat and flesh in strips, fighting gamely still.

Chinese Are Workers.

Everybody in China works hard, even those who have reached the highest positions. It is related of a member of the Chinese cabinet that he left home every morning at two o'clock as he was in duty at the palace from three to six. As a member of the privy council he was engaged from six to nine. From nine until eleven he was at the war department, of which he was president. As the member of the board of punishment he was in attendance from 12 till two and as a member of the foreign office he spent every day from two till five or six there. In addition he frequently served on special boards or commissions.

A Big Cruiser.

The armored cruiser Washington, which has been formally accepted by the government, has 14,500 tons displacement, with a speed of 22 knots and a main battery of four ten-inch guns and 16 six-inch rapid-fire rifles. She also has ample coal capacity, and a fair amount of armor protection. Her battery verges on that of the battleship class and her speed would enable her to accept or decline combat as her commander might see fit.

News to Him.

I hope the Bible I gave you last week," said the missionary, "will teach you something."

"It has taught me something already," replied the Cannibal Chief. "I find that I'm really a vegetarian."

"How's that?"

"Why, you know, it says 'all flesh is unclean'."

Work of Teachers.

Two high school teachers in Trieste have invented a new system of wireless telegraphy. Their experiments have proved so successful that the government have come to their aid.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

"DROPS" taken internally, rids the blood of the poisonous matter and acids which are the direct causes of these diseases. Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while a permanent cure is being effected by purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. S. D. BLAND

Dr. Bland, writes: "I have been a sufferer for a number of years with Rheumatism and Sciatica in my arms and legs, and tried all the remedies that I could get from medical books, and also consulted with a number of the best physicians, but found nothing that gave the relief obtained from 'DROPS.' I shall prescribe it in my practice for rheumatism and kindred diseases."

FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "DROPS," and test it yourself.

"DROPS" can be used any length of time without acquiring a "drug habit," as it is entirely free of opium, cocaine, alcohol, laudanum, and other similar ingredients.

And what do you suppose the rascal did—with nobody but Dick to watch him? Why, he did what any healthy young man in love would have done; pressed his lips to the girl's hair, his eyes filling and half a sob in his parched throat. He dolefully pictured himself a modern Antiochus, dying of love and never confessing it. Then he kissed her hair again; only her hair, for somehow he felt that her lips were as yet inviolable to his touch.

Fainting is but transitory; by and by she opened her eyes and stared vaguely into the face above her. I do not know what she saw there; whatever it was caused her to struggle to her feet. There was color enough in her cheeks now; and there was a question, too, in her eyes. Of Warburton it asked. "What did you do when I lay there unconscious?" I'm afraid there was color in his face, too. Her gaze immediately roved up the road. There was no Pirate, only a haze of dust. Doubtless he was still going it, delighted over the trouble he had managed to bring about. Warburton knelt at the girl's side and brushed the dust from her skirt. She eyed him curiously. I shan't say that she smiled; I don't know, for I wasn't there.

Meanwhile she made several futile attempts to put up her hair, and as a finality she braided it and let it hang down her back. Suddenly and unaccountably she grew angry—angry at herself, at James, at the rascally horse that had brought her to this pass. Warburton saw something of this emotion in her eyes, and to avoid the storm he walked over to Dick, picked up the reins, and led him back.

"If you will mount Dick, Miss," he said, "I'll lead him home. It's about five miles, I should say."

The futility and absurdity of her anger aroused her sense of the ridiculous; and a smile, warm and merry, flashed over her stained face. It surprised her groom.

"Thank you, James. You were right. I ought not to have ridden Pirate. I am punished for my conceit. Five miles? It will be a long walk."

"I shan't mind it in the least," replied James, inordinately happy; and he helped her to the saddle and adjusted the left stirrup.

So the journey home began. Strangely enough, neither seemed to care particularly what had or might become of Pirate. He disappeared, mentally and physically. One thing dampened the journey for Warburton. His "game leg" ached cruelly, and after the second mile (which was traversed without speech from either of them), he fell into a slight limp. From her seat above and behind him, she saw this limp.

KNELT AT THE GIRL'S SIDE.

"You have hurt yourself?" she asked gently.

"Not to-day, Miss,"—briefly.

"When he ran away with you?"

"No. It's an old trouble."

"While you were a soldier?"

"Yes."

"How?"

He turned in surprise. All these questions were rather unusual. Nevertheless he answered her, and truthfully.

"I was shot in the leg by a drunken Indian."

"While on duty?"

"Yes. Unconsciously he was forgetting to add 'Miss,' which was the patent of his servility. And I don't think that just then she noticed this subtraction from the respect due her."

It was eleven o'clock when they arrived at the gates. She dismounted alone. Warburton was visibly done up.

"Any orders for this afternoon, Miss?"

"I shall want the victoria at three. I have some shopping to do and a call to make. Send William after Pirate. I am very grateful for what you have done."

He made no reply, for he saw her father coming down the steps.

"Betty," said the colonel, pale and worried, "have you been riding Pirate? Where he is, and what in the world has happened?"—noting the dust on her habit and her tangled hair.

She explained. She told the story rather coolly Warburton thought, but she left out no detail.

"You have James to thank for my safety, father. He was very calm and clear-headed."

Calm and clear-headed! thought Warburton.

"The girl then entered the house, humming. Most women would have got out the lavender salts and lain down the rest of the day, considering the routine of a fashionable dinner, which was the chief duty of the evening."

"I am grateful to you, James. My daughter is directly in your care when she rides, and I give you full authority. Never permit her to mount any horse but her own. She is all I have, and if anything should happen to her—"

"Yes, sir; I understand."

The colonel followed his daughter; and Warburton led Dick to the stables, gave orders to William, and flung himself down on his cot. He was dead tired. And the hour he had dreaded had come! He had to drive her through the shopping district. Well, so be it. If any one exposed him, very good. This groom-business was decidedly like work. And there was that confounded dinner-party, and he would have to limp around a table and carry soup plates! And as likely as not he would run into the very last person he expected to see.

Which he did.

CHAPTER XIV.

AN ORDEAL OF TWO.

Mr. Robert vows that he will never forgive me for the ten minutes' agony which I gratuitously added to his measure. It came about in this wise. I was on my way down Seventeenth street that afternoon, and it was in front of a fashionable apartment house that I met him. He was seated on his box, the whip at the proper angle and his eyes riveted on his pair's ears. It was the first time I had seen him since the day of the episode at the police-station. He was growing thin. He did not see me, and he did not even notice me till I stopped and the sounds of my heels on the walk ceased. Arms akimbo, I surveyed him.

"Well?" I began. I admit that the smile I offered him was a deal like that which a cat offers a cornered mouse.

He turned his head. I shall not repeat the word he muttered. It was very improper, though they often refer to it in the Sabbath-schools, always in a hushed breath, however, as though to full-voice it would only fan the flames still higher.

"What have you to say for yourself?" I went on.

"Nothing for myself, but for you, move on and let me alone, or when I get the opportunity, Chuck, I'll punch your head, glasses or no glasses."

"Brother-in-law or no brother-in-law?"

"Chuck, will you go on?"—hoarsely, "I mean it."

I saw that he did. "You don't look very happy for a man who has cracked so tremendous a joke."

"Will you go along?"

"Not till I get good and ready, James. I've told too many lies on your account already not to make myself a present of this joyful reunion. Has Miss Annesley any idea of the imposture?"

He did not answer.

"How did you like waiting in Scott Circle the other night?"

Still no answer. I have half an idea that he was making ready to leap from his box. He ran his fingers up and down the lines. I could see that he was mad through and through; but I enjoyed the scene nevertheless. He deserved a little roasting on the gridiron.

"I am given to understand," I continued, "that you act as butler, besides, and pass soup around the table."

Silence. Then I heard a door close, and saw a look of despair grow on his face. I turned and saw Miss Annesley and Mrs. Chadwick coming down the steps.

"Why, how do you do, Mr. Henderson?" Mrs. Chadwick.

"I have already had the pleasure of meeting this famous young orator," purred Mrs. Chadwick, giving me her hand. She was a fashionable, not to say brilliant, intrigante. I knew her to have been concerned indirectly with half a dozen big lobby schemes. She was rather wealthy. But she was seen everywhere, and everywhere was admired. She was as completely at home abroad as here in Washington. She was a widow, perhaps 35, handsome and fascinating, a delightful raconteur, and had the remarkable reputation of never indulging in scandal. She was the repository of more secrets than I should care to discover.

I recall one night at a state function when she sat between the French ambassador and that wily Chinaman, Li Hung Chang. She discoursed on wines in French with the ambassador and immediately turned to the Chinaman and recited Confucius in the original Chinese.

Not until recently did I learn that at one time Karloff had been very attentive to her.

"Where are you bound?" asked Miss Annesley.

"I am on the way to the war department."

"Plenty of room; jump in and we shall drop you there. James, drive to the war department."

Ordinarily I should have declined, as I generally prefer to walk; but in this instance it would be superfluous to say that I was delighted to accept the invitation. I secretly hugged myself as I thought of the driver.

"How is Miss Warburton?" asked Miss Annesley, as she settled back among the cushions.

"Beautiful as ever," I replied, smiling happily.

"You must meet Miss Warburton, Grace,"—speaking to Mrs. Chadwick, who looked at me with polite inquiry. "One of the most charming girls in the land, and as good as she is beautiful. Mr. Henderson is the most fortunate of young men."

"So I admit. She was greatly disappointed that you did not meet her younger brother." First shot at the groom.

"I did expect to meet him, but I understand that he has gone on a hunting expedition. Whom does he resemble?"

"Neither Nancy nor Jack," I said. "He's a good-looking beggar, though, only you can't depend upon him for five minutes at a time. Hadn't seen the family in more than two years. Spends one night at home, and is off again, no one knows where. Some persons like him, but I like a man with more stability. Not but that he has his good points; but he is a born vagabond. His brother expects to get him a berth at Vienna and is working rather successfully toward that end."

I wondered how this bit of news affected the groom.

"A diplomat?" said Mrs. Chadwick. "That is the life for a young man with brains. Is he a good linguist?"

"Capital! Speaks French, German and Spanish, besides I don't know how many Indian sign-languages." Now I was patting the groom on the back. I sat facing the ladies, so it was impossible to see the expression on his face. I kept up this banter till we arrived at the department. I bade the ladies good day. I do not recollect when I have enjoyed ten minutes more thoroughly.

An hour in the shopping district, that is to say, up and down Pennsylvania avenue, where everybody who was anybody was similarly occupied, shopping, nearly took the spine out of our jehs. Everywhere he imagined he saw Nancy. And half a dozen times he saw persons whom he knew, persons he had dined with in New York, persons he had met abroad. But true to human nature, they were looking toward higher things than a groom in livery. When there was no more room for bundles, the women started for Mrs. Chadwick's apartments.

IMPOSING FUNERAL OF BIRD.

Sparrow Buried by Spaniards with Military Honors.

Remarkable was the funeral of a sparrow in Cuba which was attended by no fewer than 6,000 soldiers, says the New York Tribune. The story of this singular event is both curious and dramatic. At the commencement of the ten years' war the Spaniards chose the sparrow as their emblem, typifying the courage and pertinacity with which they intended to prosecute the war, while they contemptuously spoke of the enemy—the natives—as "cats."

One day in March, 1899, so runs the story, a Spanish soldier saw a cat pounce on a sparrow; he rushed to the rescue, disabled the cat with a blow from his rifle, and took the dying bird from its mouth.

The tragic event was reported to the general commanding the Spanish forces, who promptly gave orders that the cat should be court-martialed, and that the sparrow should be interred with military honors. All the principal officials and residents of Cuba were invited to the funeral, which the bishop of Solana was ordered to conduct. A bier was prepared, and the dead bird was placed on a bed of lilies and roses, the sorrowful tribute of the officers' wives, and to the sound of muffled drums and the tramp of 6,000 following soldiers the long procession wound its way to the outskirts of Havana, where the sparrow was laid to rest with full military honors.

To find a parallel to this singular homage paid to a bird one has to go back nearly 2,000 years to the days of Claudius I., fourth Roman emperor, when the death of a crow plunged all Rome into mourning. For many a year the bird had been a great favorite of the citizens, and its talents and tricks were a constant topic of conversation. One day, to the anger and grief of thousands, the bird was killed—a crime which cost the culprit his life—and it was decided to give the crow a "state" funeral. The dead bird was borne to its grave by a couple of slaves, preceded by a military band playing mournful music, and behind the corpse followed thousands of mourners, including the most highly placed and the wealthiest of Roman citizens.

A NEW KIND OF MONEY.

It Was Neither Good or Bad, But Just "Bout Middlin'."

Many of the older New Englanders now living will doubtless remember the great prevalence of counterfeit money in circulation during the forties and fifties. In fact, no one doing business on a large scale could well afford to dispense with a counterfeit bank note detector.

An old gentleman living in Barrington, N. H., was in possession of a ten-dollar note which he strongly suspected to be spurious. Having no means at hand to assure himself on the point, he sent the bill in question to Dover, in care of the local stage driver, with instructions that he have it examined at one of the larger stores of that town.

The driver promised to do as he was desired, but characteristically forgot to carry out his errand. He was charged to remember it a second time, but let it slip his memory once more. A third time he was admonished with the utmost particularity, and yet once more he forgot. Being both ashamed and afraid to again acknowledge his thoughtlessness, he determined to brave it out upon his return.

"Well," anxiously inquired the old gentleman, "did they say it was a bad bill?"

"Well, no, not exactly," answered the driver, hesitatingly.

"Not exactly?" exclaimed the other in surprised tones. "Did they tell you that it was a good one?"

"No, not exactly that, either," responded the driver, "they said it was 'bout middlin'."

Will Replace Sage.

With the death of Russell Sage there is but one person left in all the country who can dip her hands in her money bags and say to Wall street: "How much do you want and how much will you pay?" That person is Hetty Green, the richest woman in America, with the possible exception of Mrs. Russell Sage herself. Even with Russell Sage living she has repeatedly gone to Wall street with her money when the financial wolves were ravening and cent per cent was in the clouds and exacted her merciless tribute. She is the one of all others who will replace the veteran Sage in the Wall street world of finance.

Likes a Floating Veil.

Like all American women, the duchess of Marlborough has a great penchant for the floating veil to which the British have never really taken. Her headgear invariably boasts it and like all her garments it, too, is purple or mauve. The story goes that the king once said to her: "Duchess, what is the idea of these raggy veils around your hats?" She replied she always wore one because she wanted to make quite sure that no one would take her for any nationality except that of an American.

This is the season of decay and weakened vitality. Nature is being shorn of its beauty and bloom. If you would retain yours, fortify your system with Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. W. E. Bosserman.

Brilliant Idea.

Hyker—Fageligh, the dry goods man, has a scheme that keeps his store filled with customers.

Pyker—Advertising scheme, eh?

Hyker—No, not exactly. He keeps a parrot just inside the door that exclaims, "Oh, what a pretty young lady!" every time a woman comes along—and, of course, the woman can't resist the temptation to go in and buy something.—Chicago Daily News.

Danger From The Plague.

There's grave danger from the plague of Coughs and Colds that are so prevalent, unless you take Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Mrs. Geo. Walls, of Forest City, Me., writes: "It's a Godsend to people living in climates where coughs and colds prevail. I find it quickly ends them. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottle free."

The Literary Life.

"Really!" remarked the lady. "I thought they paid authors ever so much more for the things they wrote."

"No," he admitted, "it is not much, true. But, then, you see, like all poor authors, I am a very rich man, and so I can afford to take low prices."

BYRON MAN INTERVIEWED.

Hope the Electric Road Will Extend to Roxbury Pond.

Mr. O. W. Pressey, one of the selectmen of Byron, called at the Citizen office recently and complimented the publisher on the general excellence of the paper, and said it was meeting with great favor throughout his section.

In reference to the proposed electric road, he said it would not run nearer to his place than the steam road does now, unless the branch extended through Andover to Roxbury Pond. The consummation of the plan for building a big hotel at the pond, would, he thinks, make necessary the extension of the electric road to the pond. The prospect of that section being opened to easy access to the outside world, has aroused the inhabitants, and they are anxiously awaiting developments, and stand ready to assist in the undertaking.

Mr. Pressey has a contract for getting out logs for the International Paper Company, and much of his time is spent in the camp. He is interested in public affairs, and has earnest convictions regarding the way state affairs should be administered, and says the independent policy of the Citizen appeals strongly to him.

RUMFORD FALLS GIRL CHARGED WITH INSANITY.

Sunday night at the request of her father, Bertha West, the young girl whose peculiar actions have given him no end of trouble, shocked the community and perplexed the police, was taken into custody. The girl only recently regained her liberty, of which she had been restrained for six months. The case of this young girl presents very peculiar features, and calls for the exercise of the humanitarian spirit far more than the spirit of criminal justice.

The girl seems to be the victim of monomania, and has developed the habit of hanging about the Italian camps, and associating with a low class of men, whose sense of decency is too little developed to prevent their taking advantage of the girl's weakness. The result has been the utter demoralization of the girl, who, upon all other subjects, seems rational.

It is a pity that the foul minded men who are far more culpable than the girl could not be brought to the bar of justice. Tuesday forenoon Mr. Vert West, the father, swore out a warrant charging the girl with insanity.

The girl was released from custody after three days' confinement into the care of her father, who, after considering the matter, decided to withdraw his complaint and has arranged to send her to some of his relatives in New Hampshire.

AN OCCASIONAL BEAR.

Andover and Vicinity Ideal for Sport and Recreation.

To people the country over, Andover, Me., will bring to mind one of the prettiest, most homelike little towns to be found in New England. Situated within 12 miles of the Rangeley lakes, it used to be famous as a stopping place—before the R. F. & E. L. R. R. was built—for the large numbers of sportsmen on their way to them. Since the building of the railroad, Andover has lost this restless hustle, but it holds in a greater degree the opportunities for a quiet, enjoyable vacation. Built on a plain, high up in the White Mountains and surrounded by innumerable ranges, it has a variety of scenery unsurpassed in New England.

Having loved that country ever since I was 2 years old, I couldn't let this summer go by without a visit to it, and so I planned to spend my two weeks—all too short—in that beautiful region.

Leaving Boston Saturday noon (in order to utilize all my time) I went by electric over the interesting route to Newburyport, taking the train there as far as Portsmouth.

Sunday morning was devoted to a delightful trolley ride to York Beach. After dinner the trolley ride was resumed to Dover, and then by train to Portland.

Monday noon the journey was continued by rail to Rumford Falls. Here the railroad is left, and the remaining 18 miles to Andover is covered by stage, arriving there about 8 o'clock in the evening.

It is possible to make the trip in one day from Boston. The round trip fare is $10.50 including stage.

Andover affords plenty of trout, pickerel, bass and perch fishing, deer and partridge hunting, with a bear now and then, and a host of other sports. A desirable class of people go there and many wealthy men have chosen that spot for summer homes.

Board from $6 per week up is easily procured at the hotels and farms. Innumerable water falls, ponds, lakes, quiet rivers, pretty walks and pleasant drives abound. The gentle Ellis river runs directly through the town. Farther away are the Rangeley lakes and many interesting towns easily reached by good roads that make bicycle riding and automobiling a pleasure.

In all my travels through New England I have never found a spot which has the charms and advantages for sports and recreation that this most desirable village offers to the seeker for rest or pleasure.

Sing.

Banish the sighs,
For sighing is leaden,
There was never a heart
Made lighter by sighs;
Sing of to-morrow
Forgetting the sorrow—
A song to the heart
Will go high to the skies!
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Feminine Idea.

Lola—Young Huggins must have an awful lot of money in bank. Grace—What reason have you for thinking he has? Lola—He showed me a book containing nearly a hundred checks that had never been written on.—Chicago Daily News.

Rather Tame.

Timkins—Smawley has been telling me some of his vacation experiences. Simkins—And do you mean to tell me you believe his yarns? Timkins—Certainly. They were so uninteresting I'm sure they must be founded on facts.—Chicago Daily News.

After the Rejection.

"O!" said he, with affected indifference, "there are just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught." "Better!" the girl who had rejected him replied, pointedly, "better from their point of view, because they may never be caught."—Philadelphia Press.

Never Sees It Asleep.

"They say very young babies smile most in their sleep," said Miss Gusch, "did you ever notice that about your baby?" "No," replied Newpop, wearily, "I'm never at home during the day."—Philadelphia Press.

In Mourning.

"No, they are not going in society any more."

"In mourning?"

"Yes, you might call it that."

"Who for?"

"They have relatives living in Pittsburgh."—Houston Post.

Paying the Bill.

"When you go to a summer hotel the first thing you should do is to have all your money put in the hotel safe."

"That is the last thing I do."—Houston Post.

Knowledge.

Church—Did you ever learn anything of value by going to a clairvoyant?

Gotham—Yes, I learned that a fool and his money are soon parted.—Yonkers Statesman.

Had to Be.

"This will have to be a time exposure," said the photographer. "I'm glad of that, 'cause we ain't got no money," said the husband of the sitter.—Houston Post.

Their Use.

Low Financier—Take care of the pennies. High Financier—And you can pay them on the dollar.—Puck.

Accident.

Knicker—So their auto caused a runaway? Bocker—Yes, their daughter eloped with the chauffeur.—N. Y. Sun.

THE MASTERS.

Incomparable white galaxy of suns! O stars of song whose lustre blinds the day,—

Aeschylus, Homer, Shakespeare,— deathless ones Holding on high your proud and lonely way,—

Rulers of Night's domain of domeless space, Transcendent thrones, victorious over Time!

Slaying with splendor from your distant place A thousand flickering satellites of rhyme!

God! what are we, that underneath such skies We dare to light our tapers! From afar

The constellations watch this mad omprise,— A puny candle challenging a star! —Frederic Lawrence Knowles, in the March Atlantic.

HARMFUL STOMACH DOSING.

No Need of It When Hyomei Is Used to Cure Catarrh.

Physicians and scientists agree that the less medicine one swallows, the better. It is in keeping with this idea that Hyomei is recommended by leading physicians throughout this and other catarrhal sections.

When this treatment is used in catarrhal troubles, there is no stomach dosing, for the medicine is taken in with the air you breathe, and goes right to the spot where the catarrhal germs are present, healing the inflamed and irritated mucous membrane, killing the disease germs and entering the blood with the oxygen, driving all catarrhal germs from the system.

Do not try to cure catarrh of the head by putting medicine into your stomach,—this is neither a scientific nor common-sense treatment. Breathe the healing balsams of Hyomei and in a few days you will notice relief, and its continued use will result in a complete and lasting cure.

W. E. Bosserman has seen so many cures made by Hyomei amongst his customers, several of them cases where all hope of relief had been given up, that he gives an absolute guarantee of cure, or money will be refunded, with every outfit he sells.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, while extra bottles of Hyomei, if needed, are only 50 cents.

NORTH RUMFORD.

Mr. P. O. Howard is enjoying a visit of two of his sisters, Mrs. Goud of Dummer and Mrs. Wight of Gorham, N. H.

Mr. Clyde Folsom of New York City is visiting his brother-in-law, T. I. Goddard.

Mrs. Charles Moore of Bethel visited relatives at this place last week. Charles Howard is at East Andover assisting his brother, Marshall, got out some pine.

Z. W. Bartlett and E. L. Tibbets were in town last week looking up timber to supply their mill at this place the coming winter.

Mrs. Grant Woods of Bowdoin is visiting her uncle, F. H. Goddard.

It is reported that Elster and Guy Dolloff have sold their farm to F. E. Hoyt.

Looking Forward.

"But what does he live on?" "He is living at the expense of a lawyer who expects to be employed to break his rich uncle's will when the uncle dies."—Houston Post.

Remuneration.

Knicker—How are your boys getting on? Bocker—One gets a five-dollar salary and the other ten-dollar wages.—N. Y. Sun.

No Use for Them.

"Good friend," began the crippled beggar, "I have cork legs and—" "No," growled the busy merchant, don't need any today. Good-day."

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the blood is in proper condition. Cures root any constipation by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

Made by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Also manufactured at: HAIR VIGOR, AGUE CURE, CHERRY PECTORAL. We have no secrets! We publish the formulae of all our medicines.
